Exquisitely detailed set design, a hallmark of CCCT productions, includes swinging, sliding, and swiveling bookcases allowing characters to disappear and reappear throughout the show.

An evening of hilarious entertainment that will keep you laughing and smiling as this zany group of theatrical hopefuls try to unravel the mystery of "The Stage Door Slasher" .... or be the next victim!

Stage comedy filled with sight gags, play on words, and double entendres reminiscent of an Abbott and Costello routine.

Presents

The play is set in the library of an old mansion in Chappaqua, New York, in December of 1940. The fast-paced comedy involves two different murder plots that get intertwined.

A backer's audition is set up at the estate in an attempt to lure the murderer of three chorus girls. When the Broadway hopefuls gather at the mansion hoping to back their new show, they soon find themselves watching their own backs ... because there's a murderer loose in the mansion! Dead bodies are showing up everywhere, and a blizzard has cut off all possible ways out. Accusing fingers point in all directions but don't go jumping to conclusions because nothing is as it appears, nobody is who they appear to be, and those presumed dead seem to keep reappearing. It's non-stop hilarity as those gathered try to untangle the mystery.

Corpus Christi Community Theatre presents "The Musical Comedy Murders of 1940", written by John Bishop in the comic style of the 1940s. Presented through special arrangements with Dramatists Play Services, New York.
